2010 San Francisco Decorator Showcase Opens; DMA Room Highlighted

San Francisco, CA, May 12, 2010---
The 2010 San Francisco Decorator Showcase has opened to the public and the De Meza + Architecture + Interiors room, Modernism Talks Back, has received praise from the design press. The team's efforts have been featured in the local media on KTVU and KGO, as well as on design related blogs including California Home + Design and HomeWorkshop.com.

Taking the elements of the traditional bathroom as their spring board, the De Meza team transformed this space into a design that asserts that modern interiors can live beautifully within a traditional backdrop. A whimsical glass mosaic tile design, sophisticated color palette and finely detailed casework highlight their design.

Visit the firm's blog, DMA Hey! to see highlights from the press, as well as learn more about their Showcase design and collaborators.

This year's featured home is located at 3450 Washington Street. The 2010 San Francisco Decorator Showcase will run from Saturday, May 1 through Memorial Day. Proceeds will benefit the Financial Aid Program of the San Francisco University High School.
